On the overtime and hour provision, Kazy agreed that, among other things, it raised a serious committee jurisdictional question. Subsequently, Kazy reported that he had talked to John Martiny, the Committee's Chief Counsel, and that their present thinking involves getting Chairman Dulski on the conference committee to oppose this provision.

Kazy felt that the age discrimination provision boiled down to granting the Civil Service Commission authority to make exceptions to the current law which applies to the competitive service. Kazy does not believe the House would accept this conception in view of the resounding vote against H. R. 8085 last January.

	of the draft bill proposed by the Committee staff on Federal Executive Service (FES). The next meeting of the Manpower Subcommittee is scheduled for Thursday, 29 June. Mr. Lockhart noted that the FES bill reported by Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee is poorly drafted and that the use of presidential authority to grant exemptions under the Act may well create more problems than it solves. Were the two bills to pass in their present form, Mr. Lockhart sees no question but that the House bill would be accepted in conference. The draft House bill has been closely coordinated with the Civil Service Commission and Mr. Seymour Berlin's office and although it does not contain everthing that the Commission desires, the provisions set forth in the bill are acceptable to the Commission. Mr. Lockhart noted again that he had our Agency comments on the original bill in front of him at the time this bill was drafted. He eliminated those sections that we found objectionable in the earlier bill. I thanked Mr. Lockhart for his advice and told him I would be back in touch with him.

	I told Mover that the requirements for Civil Service Commission recommendation for exclusions under the Senate bill was not consistent with other statutes

I. Met with Mr. Ralph Preston, House Appropriations Committee staff, and made an appointment to pick him up at 11:00 a.m., Tuesday, 13 June, for a luncheon meeting at Headquarters for further briefing on sensitive projects outlined by the Director in the briefing of the Special Intelligence Group on 1 June 1972. The offices of Messrs. Steininger, ADD/S&T, and Proctor, DDI, have been advised.

I also discussed with him the Committee request for a spread sheet on tactical intelligence programs of the Department of Defense. Mr. Preston indicated that as was discussed during the meeting with the Special Intelligence Group this is a matter of strong interest but that the Chairman understands that at this stage we will, of necessity, have to deal in "round numbers" rather than technical detail. I thanked Mr. Preston for the advice.
